

List of problems seeking for a solution

1. I love to eat at restaurants and I do it every other night but when I call to book a table it is never possible to be able to pick the table I would enjoy the most.
2. I share a flat with a good friend of mine and his girlfriend but every month we struggle to split the bills.
3. I am quite often in business trips and I need to keep proof for my expenses to get them reimbursed but I keep losing half of my receipts every time.
4. I use my car only on the weekend as my work is a short walk away from the office, I want to share my care during the week and earn from it.
5. I drive very often downtown and every time I have to struggle for at least ten minutes to find a proper parking spot and pay my parking fee.
6. I come to Softuni with the public transport but I never know when to leave home in order to catch the right bus/train and arrive on time there.
7. I often have friends and colleagues visiting from abroad but I am not always able to take them around and spend a day or two with them to show my favorite parts of the city.
8. I have a really hard time to create a habit and I really want to but I cannot concentrate for long and loose my attention easily.
9. I love reading but when I go to the bookstore I always have to ask the librarian for a recommendation because I forget to ask my friends for advice what to read.
10. I work from home but I hate how everyday I have lunch alone because all my friends and family are at work and it is really hard for me to find anyone to eat with.
11. I want to eat various and healthy food every day but I have the tendency to forget what I had for breakfast and it is really hard for me to pick my lunch.
12. I am a very weak person and often give up but I would like to learn to persist and not give up on my plans and ideas easily.
13. Every morning before leaving for work I wonder where I left my smartphone the previous night before going to bed.

14. My father has a small business and often receives calls from foreigners and needs me to be there to translate the call for him because he does not know any foreign languages.
15. I don't have my own car and often have to take the taxi to get from one point to another but I rarely can find anyone around willing to share the ride with me and split the bill.
16. My calendar is always full with all sorts of events and it is really hard for me to judge which one has more priority than the other.
17. I love soccer but just moved into a new city and don't have any friends to play soccer with.
18. I am regularly throwing away a lot of food because I tend to buy food and forget about it being in my fridge to only notice that once it has expired.
19. My work during the day is such that every now and then I have 30 minutes available and would like to spend those helping out someone nearby for a small fee.
20. I want to be able to share with my friends the products that I like and shop at the grocery store regularly.
21. I want to be a silicon valley kid and have this amazing idea to start my own company but find it really hard to find and consult with more experienced startupper all around the world.
22. I hate it when the person I am meeting is late for our meeting but feel uncomfortable telling him how I feel.
23. I sometimes have a beer or two and then drive home but I am not really sure if I don't exceed the legal limit, especially when I am abroad and legislation is different.
24. I love going to concerts and usually learn about them from a poster in the street but I hate that I have to remember and look for the event afterwards to buy tickets.
25. I love homemade food but I am a terrible chef because I find it really boring to cook alone at home.
26. I need a way to collaborate with fellow designers across multiple countries for the business of my international company.
27. My best friend is blind and when we really want to watch some movie but it has subtitles I have to spend the whole time reading them to him rather than enjoying the movie myself.
28. I have a 3D printer at home and want to make it available for others to create their ideas while I am not using it and I have no problem to ship the item to them upon their payment for the materials and delivery.

29. One of my worst nightmares is buying a present for the birthday of a friend because I never know what they would like the most.
30. Everyone has an odd job they would like done around the home, but don't want to perform on their own. Whether it is mowing the lawn, painting a wall, clearing a room, service on their vehicle or any number of other small tasks...and many people are willing to work these tasks for a price.
31. Most of us have suggestions or things that we want to promote to encourage certain changes on process, social norms or product but did not do so because of limited tool or people to support our ideas.
32. Nowadays you can only meet interesting people for business partnerships in summits, events or conferences ... and often you discuss new ideas having lunch. What if you could meet an interesting person from the same industry you work on and discuss possible partnerships in a friendly restaurant of your choice, by just using an app?
33. Today I want to do something for fun, but I don't know what it can be. I can go to restaurant, have a date with a person who I don't know, or even do something unusual. All of this is fun but how can I know this possibilities, and how can I meet someone who will accept e.g. join me on my challenge?
34. I want to solve the entertainment that is in a car while driving. Right now all you can do is listen to music and call people. I want something (like a trivia game) that you could interact with while driving. You can also communicate with other players. You can have a private game or play it with other people close by. It will make traffic fun and it will engage your mind while driving.
35. Let's say that you go to work by car alone through the same route every day and you would like to give rides to share gas expenses or even have a little bit of profit. Two question comes in mind: how can people find out that you are giving rides, in a reliable way? And how you trust those people?
36. It is often a problem for office people and other worker to organize lunch. As a result, we end up eating fast food, not always good for the body.
37. We have a 9 months old son and have been getting toys for our son from friends and families. It's obvious that infants outgrow their toys quickly and parents always have to get new toys for them. So instead of just relying on family and friends, I'm curious if others in my apartment or neighborhood are interested in toy exchange.
38. Across the world, there are restaurants that waste tons of excess food everyday. I would like to create a solution to establish a link between restaurants and the charity homes/needy households to enable excess food donation.

39. Usually buying a product in one or few units is more expensive than buying at bulk. It happens also that many websites offers you free delivery if you buy more than a certain total value. This is sometimes too much for a single buyer.
40. I would like to be part of a social business but can't find anywhere a good showcase of social businesses that really help and are financially sustainable. I don't want to do charity, but real long-term help.
41. I am buying the same stuff almost every month. I want to buy it, schedule the delivery time and save the basket to be used the next time.
42. Lot of my friends ask me all the time which camera they should buy. I reply every time with the same questions: For what will you use it? Traveling? Family holidays? Poetic landscapes? Do you need the picture to be printed or just being viewed on notebook or even just Facebook? etc.
43. I travel a lot and I have plenty of pictures. I wanna create a world map from them. Unfortunately, I don't have a camera with GPS module so I cannot locate my photos. I bet there are very similar pictures from most of the places somewhere else on the internet already geolocated.
44. A good diet is an extremely fundamental aspect to consider whenever you are trying to develop a lean and muscular body. A lot of people quit their current workout diets because they are either too lazy or they simply just don't have time to shop and cook for themselves.
45. Apart from the usual sight-seeing of cities with a guide book or a tourist guide, I would love to discover (or rediscover) a city and its more or less known parts via some sort of a game.
46. It's friday night and you hang out with a sweet girl or a cute boy or your friends. You all would love to watch a movie but everyone wants to see another movie. Some would love to see action whereas others would really like to laugh and prefer the comedy genre. Some recommendations would be nice.
47. I am on managerial position in one middle-sized company. I receive a lot of emails that I forward to my team members or even other managers to work on it. But sometimes I need them to focus on something more important at the moment than reading my emails and finding out how quickly they should reply.
48. People spend hundreds of dollars on groceries every month, but don't have a great understanding of how much they're actually consuming and in what quantities.
49. We all have side projects that we would like to do because they're cool or fun. However, in the stress of daily life, we quickly forget about it.

50. Nowadays specially salespeople and most businessmen are being bombarded with business cards every day! Business cards are no more used , most of us save the phone number and email address on our smartphones and throw the Card.
51. I play guitar and sometimes people tell me to learn a song very quickly just by hearing it from the radio or notebook. I am not that good so I can guess it, so I need a little bit of help to recognize and learn the chords.
52. Science is underfinanced in a lot of countries over the world, so young smart minds are forced to look for patrons or commercial ventures to support their research.
53. Bill splitting can sometimes be a complex task. How much is the bill this month? Wait, what percentage of water do I pay? Why not simplify the process?
54. Many czech schools lack funding to run interesting events for the kids or to renew the equipment faster, etc. Parents are not willing to spend huge amounts of money contributing directly and also do not have the full trust in the school management.
55. Paper receipts are messy, they are a hassle to deal with and they make it difficult to keep track of your expenses. Some people keep them in their wallets. Some people keep them in shoeboxes. Most people are frustrated with keeping them organized. It gets worse when you are looking for this one particular receipt as you go through piles of paper receipts.
56. Basically, everyone has a special skill, hobby, or passion that excites them, right? Why not provide a way for people to share their knowledge in the form of teaching classes.
57. I've been learning English and need to improve spoken English. My spoken English is terrible. I've tried contacted people around the world many times for improving our spoken english but it usually doesn't work ( because of you have too different level of english, the second person isn't interested in speak to you, you don't have topic to be discussed and so on)
58. I want to know what people miss in a specific location around me. It doesn't have to be anything brilliantly innovative, just something regular that isn't at that specific spot. Let's say people could vote for a new grocery shop in the neighborhood.
59. My friends and I are always forgetting if we have paid each other back and who owes who what amount for concerts, dinners, etc. Also sometimes it can be awkward asking particular people for money.
60. I travel quite a lot and especially in developing countries it is difficult to say which areas should I avoid because of danger. Could be great if there was up-to-date heatmap of danger. Usually it is not that the whole country or whole city is dangerous.It is mostly some local spots. Would be great if police or other travellers could report they experience.

61. While there are many nice friendly people around us, we barely get a chance to talk to them and get to know them, because we're too busy or shy to initiate a conversation, among other reasons. Also, I observed that many students eat by themselves on campus. Combining these two, I thought that a third party (the app) inviting people to eat together can tackle both these problems.
